The Abstract should be 500 to 800 words in length. Complete sentences, active verbs, and the third person should be used, and abstract should be written in the past tense. Standard nomenclature should be used and abbreviations should be avoided. No literature should be cited.

KEYWORDS
Following the abstract, about 3 to 5 key words that will provide indexing references should be listed.

INTRODUCTION
The Introduction should provide a clear statement of the problem, the relevant literature on the subject, and the proposed approach or solution. It should be understandable to colleagues from a broad range of scientific disciplines.

PAPER BODY
Subdivide the body into section to emphasize both content and clarity. Use headings and subheadings to understand the research clearly. Discuss clearly the analysis and interpretation of the findings. Results are to be given clearly. Mention ways to improve or expand your research.

RESULTS
Results should be presented with clarity and precision. The results should be written in the past tense when describing findings in the authors' experiments. Previously published findings should be written in the present tense. Results should be explained, but largely without referring to the literature. Discussion, speculation and detailed interpretation of data should not be included in the Results but should be put into the Discussion section. Better is to use tables and figures to show results. Explanation should be given clearly under each table and figure.

DISCUSSION
The Discussion should interpret the findings in view of the results obtained in current work and in past studies of this topic. State the conclusions in a few sentences at the end of the paper. The Results and Discussion sections can include subheadings, and when appropriate, both sections can be combined.

CONCLUSION AND FUTURE SCOPE

The details of the methods used in the experiments should preferably be described in the legend instead of in the text. The same data should not be presented in both table and graph form or repeated in the text.

FIGURES

Figure legends should be typed in numerical order. Graphics should be prepared using applications capable of generating high resolution GIF, TIFF, JPEG or Powerpoint before pasting in the Microsoft Word Paper file. Use numerals to designate figures and upper case letters for their parts (e.g. Figure 1). Begin each legend with a title and include sufficient description so that the figure is understandable without reading the text of the Paper. Information given in legends should not be repeated in the text.
